Maid of Honor—Barbara Bradley

Homecoming Plans Tentatively Set

Homecoming activity committees have been appointed and are working out the plans for the festive day. Plans, however, were not complete when the Pow Wow went to press.

According to Major Derwood Cann, chairman of the parade committee, a tentative parade route has been made. The parade is scheduled to form at 10 a. m. Saturday, October 22 in West Monroe. It will proceed through downtown West Monroe and Monroe. It will break up at Five Points. The parade will be made up of the college band, ROTC, organizational floats, decorated cars and freshman marchers.

All alumni are encouraged to decorate their cars and join in the activities.

Persons in charge of floats are requested not to dismantle floats until the student photographer has made pictures of them for the yearbook.

The freshmen will be interested to know that Friday, October 21 has been officially designated "Freshman Day."

Northeast State's Indians will go into battle Saturday, October 22, on their own field under the watchful eyes of a new Homecoming queen and a bevy of beauties in her court.

Nelda Reppond Smothers will reign as Northeast's 1955 Homecoming queen. She will be crowned at the game with McNeese State College. Nelda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Reppond of Monroe. She is a junior home economics major from Monroe.

The new court, selected this week and announced by the Student Council, will be escorted by members of the Indian Quarterback Club. Queen Nelda will reign supreme for Homecoming weekend.

Nelda has been active in campus activities. She is an inactive member of Gamma Zeta social society. In 1953 she was a military sponsor and Sigma Alpha Chi fraternity sponsor.

Selected to be the Maid of Honor for the annual homecoming event was Barbara Ann Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Bradley of Monroe. She is a sophomore elementary education major. Last year, Barbara was a cheerleader. She is a member of Gamma Zeta sorority.

Other members of the court are Ann McClure, Betty LaBorde, Sonya Franks and Mary Ann Pitarro. They were selected by the football team to serve as attendants to the queen.

Ann McClure is a freshman elementary education major. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. McClure of Tallulah. Betty LaBorde, junior elementary education major, is the daughter of Mr and Mrs. Douglas A. LoBorde of Winnsboro. Mary Ann Pitarro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Pitarro of Monroe, is a senior elementary education major. She is a member of Gamma Zeta social sorority and the Newman Club. She is the head cheerleader.

Northeast's homecoming royalty will be escorted by members of the Indian Quarterback Club. Dr. W. L. Bendel, president of the organization, will escort Queen Nelda. Vice-President, Sam Rubin, will escort Maid of Honor, Barbara Bradley.

Maids and their escorts are Mary Ann Pitarro and Jerry Sugar, Ann McClure and Curtis Nichols, Sonya Franks and Tony Renfro and Betty LaBorde and Mose Loffin.

H. H. Brinsmade, member of the Monroe News-Star staff and author of the column "Jes' Ramblin'," will crown the queen during the pre-game activities.

Pow Wow Meeting

An important meeting of the Pow Wow staff and other students interested in being a part of the school newspaper staff, will be held in the lobby of the old girls' dormitory Monday, third period.

All staff members are urged to attend.

Be A Part Of Government

All students at Northeast are voters or potential voters. You will help, along with others at the polls to choose candidates to fill offices locally, in the state, and in the national government.

How is your political IQ concerning the current campaign? How many Louisiana gubernatorial candidates are in the race now, for instance, and who are they?

Six candidates, at this writing, have announced that they want to be governor of Louisiana and that they will campaign actively statewide, until the January 17 Democratic primary. They are Fred Preaus, of Farmerville and chairman of the state highway board; Earl K. Long, former governor; DeLesseps (Chep) Morrison, mayor of New Orleans; Francis Grevemberg, head of the state police; Rufus Fontenot, director of state revenue; and James McLemore, Alexandria business man.

Three candidates are in the ring for lieutenant governor. C. E. (Cap) Barham, of Ruston, is now in the state's number two executive seat; he is running on the Morrison ticket. Lether Frazier, formerly president of John McNeese State College at Lake Charles, resigned that position to be the number two man on Long's ticket. And A. Brown Moore, New Orleans city councilman, last week joined with Preaus in Farmerville to announce as a gubernatorial campaign team.

Remember — you voters — to register before December 17, when the registrar's books close, and be a part of your government.

Fall—A Banner Of Welcome

Fall—the beauty of nature's colors radiates from every nook and gives the lie to a well-worn defeatist phrase, "all is lost."

An early Fall dawn greets the hunter and his hounds, briskly stepping through the brush and between the trees, watching for the prey.

Fall sunrises glorify the heavens with brilliancy unmatched in any manmade contrivance, growing brighter until the world awakens, yawns and leaps with glee.

On cloudy and wintry Fall days the chilly "atmosphere" is yet another proof of beauty to bolster faith in the Great Beyond, above the gloomy fleeces in the skies.

In the afterglow of a Fall evening the warmth of a homey hearth surrounded with the familiar, kind and loving, is a richness not repeated in another setting.

The cool nights of Fall create a slumbering peacefulness, in a manner of one ever grateful for a chance to live.

And so we hasten to fly the banner of welcome for a season that bids farewell to heat and its sluggishness and brings to us a cool crispness in actions of mind and body.

Letter To Northeast Students

I would like to take this opportunity to state that I think you are doing a magnificent job.

You are decidedly an influence on the kind of life which is to be found on our campus. That's great.

You work for your own interests and those of Northeast. That's grand.

You yell, stamp the stands and generally raise a ruckus at the Indians' home games. That's swell.

You are learning something of the concepts of American democracy. That's patriotic.

You attend classes, though sometimes late. That's human.

Your attitude toward college life is aimed in the right direction for honest citizenship. That's splendid.

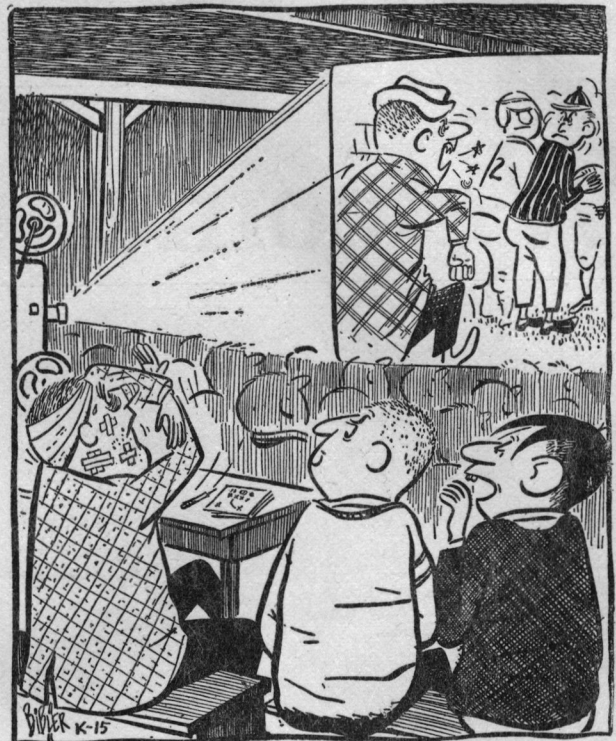

And you read your campus newspaper with interest. That's great, too.

I wish now to re-state my beginning up there—I think you are doing a magnificent job of being students.

Five students, former or current, of Northeast State were in the cast of "Tony Draws A Horse," the first of Bastrop's Little Theater plays, which was presented two times last week.

Marilyn Morgan, who is at present enrolled at Northeast, played the part of Mrs. Smith; Ted Broadnax acted as Dr. Howard Fleming; Sylvia Barnett was the "silly maiden," Grace; Mary Nell Slossky portrayed Elise Parsons; and Beverly Arrant, for the play, became Agnes.

The three-act play was guest-previewed by Northeast's own "Lady" Annie Lee West Stahl.

Annual Music Meet At NE Oct. 27-29

Music instructors from every part of Louisiana will assemble at Northeast for the annual convention of the Louisiana Music Teachers Association from October 27 through October 29.

Among the major attractions of the conventions will be a recital by Miss Josephine Antoine, former Metropolitan Opera star, on the night of October 28.

A concert by the Twin City Symphony orchestra with piano soloist Edgar Davis, music instructor at Southwestern Louisiana State College, will also perform at the convention.

Comedy Presented Last Time Today

By Lew Koch

Borrowing the bell from "Ding Dong School," we call attention to the fact that tryouts for "You Can't Take It With You" will be held for the last time this afternoon at 3:15 in the auditorium.

This hilarious comedy is mainly concerned with a wonderful household of characters who delightfully practice the theory that "you can't take it with you," "it" meaning the joy that comes from living a full, uninhibited life.

Jimmy Stewart had the male lead in the movie production, and perhaps a few will remember the crazy, mixed-up chain of events throughout the film. Northeast's interpretation of the script should be great entertainment!

Tryouts are not only for members of the speech department. Everyone interested is urged to audition. The play will run November 21 and 22, the first Monday and Tuesday before Thanksgiving.

'Messiah' To Be Produced By Local And N'east Talent

For the first time, the Northeast Music Department will combine its talents with community talents for a big production of the Messiah, on December 11.

Music for the Messiah will be furnished by the Northeast Choir and members of church choirs, forming a chorus of one hundred voices. Soloists will be selected from both college students and community members.

A special orchestra, consisting of local talent, will also be formed to play for the production.

Rehearsal begins on November 8 in the Fine Arts building. All persons interested in participating in the Messiah production are urged to be present.

Honor Society Holds First Meet Of Year

The initial meeting of the Northeast State Honor Society was held on Monday, October 2.

Plans were made for the publishing of student directories and for an entry in the Homecoming parade. Members discussed the possibilities of having a Christmas or a Valentine party.

For an open session, the society agreed to invite a faculty member who has made an interesting tour abroad relate his experiences to the group.

Professor George Is At It Again

By Bill Salter

Drama director for Northeast, Assistant Professor George Brian, will start the wheels rolling with tryouts on the production, "You Can't Take It With You," scheduled October 13 and 14. This great broad production has starred many notables including the late Lionel Barrymore.

When the cobwebs are cleared and the genius of George Brian starts to work, you are in for an evening of hilarious laughter watching this delightful comedy, November 20 and 21.

Brian is known in theatrical circles for his outstanding ability as a director and actor. His contribution of good theatre to Northeast has included such productions as "The Robe," "The Great Big Doorstep" and many others.

If you would like to venture into the acting field, contact Professor Brian at the Fine Arts building immediately. He would like to talk to you.

Parts in all productions at Northeast are open to everyone. Regular rehearsals for the comedy, "You Can't Take It With You," start on November 17 and 18, and will be presented in Brown auditorium November 20 and 21.

Special Education Clinic Offers Extensive Service To Children

By Betty Kennedy

More extensive service is being offered by Northeast State through the newly-organized Special Education Clinic. The State Department of Education and school systems of this area are sponsoring this worthwhile project.

The purpose of the Special Education Clinic is to provide services for exceptional children in the surrounding parishes. The program is not attempting to supplant any agencies now operating but to enrich the services for children.

Staffing the clinic are Robert C. Canedo, Dr. Gladys Jones, John J. Barnes, and Milton Blue.

Mr. Canedo is coordinator and clinical psychologist of the new center. Mr. Jones is a reading specialist, Mr. Barnes is an expert in dealing with defective hearing, and Mr. Blue will aid the children with speech difficulties.

Members of the Special Education Clinic are visiting schools in this area where they cooperate with teachers, supervisors, and superintendents in promoting programs of remedial work with retarded children. They diagnose difficulties and suggest methods of helping the exceptional child.

School systems which are cooperating in the special services are the City of Monroe and the following parishes: Ouachita, Richland, Madison, East Carroll, West Carroll, Morehouse, Catahoula, Franklin, and Caldwell.

Principals Meet Set For Oct. 18

School principals throughout the 3rd district will convene October 18 at Northeast State, according to D. W. McBride, Oak Grove High School principal and president of the organization.

Representatives from the following parishes are planning to attend the meeting: Morehouse, West Carroll, East Carroll, Ouachita, Richland, Tensas, Concordia, Catahoula, Franklin, Madison, and the City of Monroe.

Opening the day's program will be registration and a coffee period from 9 to 9:30 a. m. in the Home Management house on the college campus. R. S. Hargis, Rayville High School principal, is program chairman.

The main session is scheduled to follow, with music by students of the Fine Arts Department as an introductory feature.

Morning events will also include a panel pertaining to the Special Education Clinic, which began functioning at Northeast in the late summer. This phase of the agenda is timed from 9:50 to 11:20.

Participating in the feature will be four specialists who are affiliated with the clinic. Headed by Robert C. Canedo, co-ordinator and clinical psychologist, the group also includes Dr. Gladys Longino Jones, reading specialist; Milton Blue, speech therapist; and John J. Barnes, expert in treating defective hearing.

ROTC Company 'B' Wins Honor Award

Company "B" of Northeast's ROTC won the Honor Company award for the week of October 5 through 12, by the order of Major William D. Cann, Commandant of Cadets.

The award citation read, "The company was cited for exemplary performance, appearance and military bearing during drill last Wednesday. This unit was rated highest in competition with other units of the battalion in the conduct of prescribed drill, attention to orders, military discipline and courtesy, knowledge of drill subjects positions, postures and neatness of uniform and personal appearance. The initiative and esprit de corps exhibited by this company during this drill period reflects great credit on themselves and the ROTC."

Cadet Captain John Ensminger commanded this week's honor company. The award is an honor streamer which is carried on the company guidon until another unit surpasses their accomplishments.

As I See It

By Charlene Miller

Soon there will be no Pat White's left on the campus. Pat Lillian White is now an engaged girl. Wayne Nolan is the man in her life.

Sure will be glad to see "Podge" McKoin back on the campus after his absence due to football injuries.

Pam Roye is sporting a mighty new hairstyle. So is Jeanette Cash.

Sue Terrell proves that brains and beauty do mix. She's the newly elected president of Beta Sigma.

Bob Carter will be leaving us soon to play professional ball with the Brooklyn Dodgers. Good luck Bob!

Guess by now everyone's seen Pat Emanuel's engagement ring. The young man is Charles Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kulke, Mr. and Mrs. Smothers, are a few Northeast couples that make marriage seem to be a wonderful institution.

Everyone's glad to see "Big" Sid Cleghorne wandering around the campus. He's now attending school in Little Rock. The B. S. U. Choir sounded very nice, indeed, at the religious assembly. Bob Oldenburg is a very talented accompanist.

Dr. Guest is certainly no admirer of the vanities of the feminine world. We're a necessary evil, Dr. Guest.

The queens for the cotton festival were escorted by eight of our own ROTC boys: Jimmy Williams, Jimmy Smith, Dave Wadsworth, Mac Gray, Bob Betz, Joe Street, John Earl Taylor and Bell McNair. Bet that was an enjoyable mission.

Don't say anything about English to Joe Fant. He's rather allergic to that subject or at least he'd like to be.

Wails and Wahoos

By Fred McDowell

Northeast has two cheerleaders who seem to think that their uniforms were provided them solely for the purpose of enabling them to stand on the sidelines and watch the ballgame. Oh, we don't say that they stand there for the whole game with their backs turned to the stands and a bored expression on their faces. Not the whole game. Every now and then they condescend to turn around and limply participate in a cheer.

Now, we don't think the cheerleaders should exhaust themselves, or even overly exert themselves, but we do think there are certain fundamental chores they are expected to perform. Not the least of which is the creation of the proper mood in the spectators for long, loud, happy yells.

To do this, the yell leaders must look peppy, happy, vigorous and demanding. It is, as you can see, hard work. A lazy, reluctant cheerleader is worse than no cheerleader at all.

There is no need to mention the names of these two since they are in a prominent spot, and that seems to be the only reason they bother to appear at the games, and everyone has noticed them by now. We think it only fair to other students, the school, and the other cheerleaders to ask them to either change their ways or give up their positions to more energetic persons.

Fortunately, Northeast has four cheerleaders who work harder than any we have seen in many years of football spectating. Northeast is proud of this frolicsome four.

Sports Movies Shown Each Tuesday Following Indians' Weekend Games

Every Tuesday night following a Northeast football game on Saturday, Coach Devone Payne shows the players a movie of that game, in order to point out to each individual gridster his mistakes. The movie is frequently interrupted, the picture stopped and the exact error is shown to the player. This method precludes any "Aw, coach, I didn't miss that block" pleas.

Members of the team are urged to speak up when they have a question or a comment on any phase of the game. Mental laziness during these lectures is not tolerated.

Last Tuesday night the movie of the Delta State game was shown and even though we won that game, the number of errors made was still far too high. The miscues that caused fumbles, missed blocks, tackles, and passes were pointed out and a remedy—as far as possible—was presented.

Coach Payne said that during the movie these errors were noted for future reference in practice sessions preceding the next scheduled game.

The presentation of these movies has greatly increased the amount of time that a coach can spend with each player and, too, has made that time mean more. Its practicality has been proved over the years—it is by no means a new idea—and is used today by colleges and high schools all over the nation.

It was pointed out by Payne that when he was coaching back in the days before movies were made of each game it was practically impossible to get any comparable amount of intensive coaching to the players that these movies now readily afford.

This is only one of the many instructional aids used by coaches to produce better teams for Northeast.

Jus' Gabbin'

By Sara Hinton

Several weeks back we began talking about colors and clothing. It has been said by authorities that color is a dangerous thing if not used in moderation. To illustrate a point, orange and red obviously don't mix.

To be well dressed doesn't mean that you must have hundreds of skirts, dresses and blouses. Matching and mixing applies to both colors and figures. Obviously you wouldn't appear well dressed if you wore a plaid blouse with a printed skirt. Nor does a well dressed girl wear a brown sweater with a black skirt.

Shoes and sox are vital parts of being well dressed. These cute little flat heeled pumps that are on the market were never designed to be worn with sox. They are casual creations to be worn with or without hose. Likewise the conventional campus loafer or oxford was designed to be worn with sox, not hose.

INDIANS GAIN GROUND—Northeast guard, C. J. Melancon (60), runs interference for back Aubrey Wade in last Saturday's game with the Southwestern Louisiana Lions. The Tribe went down to the count of 26-6.

Bulldogs Defeat Indians By Gaining A 20-Point Lead During First Half

By David Watson

The Indians showed only token resistance in the first half, but came back like a new team in the second half to hold the strong Southwestern Louisiana Institute Bulldogs to no first downs in the third quarter and only two in the final.

Four firsts was the tally in the second half for the rejuvenated Tribe. The Bulldogs, who had amassed a 20 point lead in the first half, ran up against the classic brick wall when the Redmen, sparked by the brilliant defensive playing of Red Yocom, Rod Statham, and Mack Powell began clicking.

Early in the second quarter, as a climax to an unstoppable 60 yard march, the Tribe hit paydirt. This assault, featuring the running of left halfback Aubrey Wade and a pass from Danny Hoak to Tommy Leos, was completed by a smash through center by quarterback Hoak.

The highlight of the fourth period was Everett Reynolds' brilliant running and passing. Reynolds broke away for a 49 yard punt return for the longest yardage gain of the game which was nullified by a 15 yard penalty.

Tackle Sherrod McKoin, who became a casualty in a line pileup early in the first quarter, was carried off the field on a stretcher, later to be taken to Wright-Bendel Clinic. At this writing, it is reported by line coach Leon Manley that Podge is believed to have a pinched nerve in his back. He is expected to be out of the hospital soon.

Meet The Team

Easily the largest man on the Indian football team, Sherrod "Podge" McKoin, Jr. is only 22 years old and weighs over 250 pounds. Podge would never qualify for the title of "fat man", though, since that 250 pounds includes all the muscles he needs and more. He plays nearly every minute of every game and, believe me, that takes stamina!

The strange thing about McKoin's case is that he never played any football whatsoever before he came to the Northeast campus. Some of the players that lettered in high school didn't become regulars here at Northeast as fast as Podge did.

To say that Coach Payne depends on Sherrod is putting it mildly. Podge is a regular in every sense of the word. He's that way on the campus, too. Everyone knows Podge and likes him; you would have to search mighty hard and for a very long time to find anyone who doesn't.

Evils Of Ladder Shunned By Males

By C. H. Standard

Strolling about the campus this week, I noticed a tall ladder leaning on one of the main buildings across a sidewalk. It amused me as I walked around the thing. I have always heard that evil will overtake one who walks under a ladder. It was then that I decided to observe.

This is what happened: in the next 50 minutes, 55 males and 13 females walked to the spot where the ladder was situated. Fifty-one of the males went around it. Four walked under. Two freshmen approached the ladder. One dipped under, while one walked around. Of the thirteen females who approached the ladder, ten strolled directly under it while three walked around.

Here we have a situation indicating coeds being less superstitious—at least on this campus.

Oh well, we've had a lot of exams this week, and most of us need something to blame our failure on.

Campus Library Has 1,200 Films

Do you know that on the campus of Northeast there is a film library containing approximately 1,200 films and 7,000 filmstrips? That these films and filmstrips are available just for the asking, and you learn from them as well as enjoy them? These materials are audio-visual aids for any subject, unit or special events you might be using.

Use of films is not limited to students and teachers on the campus. They may be secured by public schools of Louisiana. Teachers may have them just by ordering—by name—the film they would like to use and it will be sent to them post-paid.

Churches and organizations also may take advantage of the library supply by requesting the film or film strip. Northeast employs a librarian who specializes in the handling of such materials.

According to library reports, most persons who have checked out films return for more.

Journalism Student Finds New and Interesting Creature at Northeast

By Fred McDowell

This institution was honored a few days ago by a brief visit from Mr. A. P. Arachnid. Mr. Arachnid was here to do research work for his doctorate degree. He attached himself to the journalism office and immediately began writing.

A. P., as he likes to be called, was a very reticent person and frequently never even answered a direct query by an interested student. As he busily spun and wove the fine web of his doctorate thesis he seemed just too wrapped up in his work to give heed to any silly questions by ignorant observers.

Since A. P. would not grant us an interview, we can only offer speculation gained by an amateurish analysis of his actions.

Let us proceed.

First of all, his name. Those initials intrigued us and a suggestion was made that they stood for "Associated Press." Well, we don't know for certain.

Next, his actions. As we have already mentioned, he wrote steadily all day and in a language that was very foreign, to say the least. It is possible that A. P. was writing his thesis on "the use of sanskrit in ancient journalism."

We do know that he was sincere since everything he wrote came from heart, or at least a region in the near proximity.

Anyone could see that.

A. P. was a fast worker, too. He had already spun a veritable web to trap anything and everything that would aid him in his writing before he was ever noticed at all. He must have been on the campus for at least 24 hours before he was recognized by anyone.

Well, of course you know by now that we are only spoofing you. A. P. is not a famous journalist at all, but a "writin'" spider. Right outside our door.

Arachnid is the family name of all spiders and he was given that name "A. P." by a journalism major who has time to think of such inanities.

We are sorry that A. P. had to leave us. Someone tore down a large portion of his beautifully constructed web and he took this brutal hint and left.

We like to think that old "Associated Press" headed for the school of journalism at Louisiana State University.

Good luck and 30's, A. P.!
